ONDC

Open Network for Digital Commerce

New Joiner Onboarding

“Traditional” eCommerce has natural limitations

The problem is not lack of digital access — it is the complexity and cost of participating in digital commerce within closed ecosystems. The age of AI will only exacerbate these challenges.

Platform Concentration Is Becoming a Systemic Risk

Commerce Is Digitising Faster Than Governance Can Adapt

AI Is About to Redefine How Commerce Is Accessed

Globally, countries have been trying, so far unsuccessfully, to address these issues through competition law

The Current Model Wasn’t Built For Them

Today's e-commerce runs on a platform-centric model where a few large marketplaces own the entire experience. That creates real problems:

Sellers are confined to a handful of large platforms, with little say in how they show up or who they reach

Merchants operate on the platform's terms, with pricing, visibility, and policies dictated by the gatekeeper

Discovery is siloed — a seller on one platform is invisible to buyers on another, fragmenting the market

Building the full commerce stack (cataloguing, logistics, payments, and customer service) is too fragmented and costly for most small businesses to manage independently

This is where we come in

We have democratised digital technology, making it accessible to every citizen and every region of the country. ONDC is proving to be a boon for small shopkeepers and MSMEs, enabling them to access markets across the country.

- Global Fintech Fest, Mumbai, Oct'25

7-day daily SIP model is market-leading

Monetisation began Apr'26

"For a gig worker on a variable daily income, the idea of a monthly SIP can feel like an overwhelming commitment.

But taking ₹100 a day is the same ₹3,000 at the end of the month.

On ONDC, SIPs are available for ₹100, meeting the daily wage earner where they are, in the rhythm of how they actually earn and spend."
